

classmates she encouraged, and the family who will forever feel her presence in every beautiful moment.

Brianna's dedication to nursing went beyond textbooks and clinical rotations — it was the way she lived her life every day. Whether she was comforting a frightened child during a hospital visit or lending an ear to a struggling classmate, Brianna embodied the very best of what it means to be a caregiver. She often spoke of wanting to bring dignity and gentleness into healthcare, especially for underserved families. "Everyone deserves to be seen," she once said. "Not just treated, but truly seen." That philosophy guided every action, and it's what made her not just an excellent student, but a healer in the truest sense.

Brianna is survived by her parents, David and Michelle Brown of Ann Arbor; her younger siblings, Kayla and Nathan Brown; her grandparents, Helen and Thomas Riley of Traverse City; and a large extended family of aunts, uncles, cousins, and dear friends who loved her dearly.

A celebration of Brianna's life will be held on (insert date) at (insert location) in Ann Arbor. Memorial service following at 12:00 p.m. All are welcome to attend and share in honoring Brianna's memory.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks that donations be made in Brianna's name to the Children's Hospital of Michigan Foundation or to The Brianna Rose Brown Memorial Nursing Scholarship, established at Eastern Michigan University to support aspiring nurses who share her passion for helping others.

where the unexpected. Brianna, deeply committed to her life, though brief, was a person who knew her. She was a person who lived, leaving behind a legacy of empathy and strength.

Brianna was also a beloved sister to Kayla (22) and Nathan (19). She was the one who remembered everyone's favorite snacks, gave the best hugs, and was always the first to show up — whether it was for a late-night chat, a birthday, or a heartbreak. To her family, she was a protector, a confidant, and a source of infinite joy.

Outside of her academic life, Brianna enjoyed quiet mornings with coffee and a book, long walks in the Nichols Arboretum, and weekend getaways up north with her family. She adored baking, always trying out new recipes, and was especially known for her legendary lemon bars — no family gathering was complete without them. Brianna's love for music, especially acoustic and jazz, often sang softly

Her kindness and support were a beacon of light for many, and she shared her healing journey with grace and vulnerability, helping others find their way through their own struggles.

Her friendships were deep and lasting. Brianna had an uncanny ability to make others feel at ease — whether through her warm smile, her goofy sense of humor, or her sincere interest in people's lives. She was the one friends called in the middle of the night, knowing she'd pick up her best friend, Jasmine Cole, shared that Brianna had an "old soul" and a wisdom far beyond her years. "She knew what mattered," Jasmine said. "She reminded us to slow down, to love harder, to be present."
